1721. Freeman. 1756, May 8. He and certain others of Newport preferred a petition to Assembly, setting forth that wherefore there is great danger of approaching war, and this government is repairing the fort and putting the colony in a posture of defence, and as the greater part of petitioners have been used to the exercise of cannon, that therefore an act may be passed that masters of vessels in town of Newport may instead of being obliged to bear arms in trained bands of said town, be obliged by an order from the Captain of said fort to exercise cannon there, thus gaining further knowledge of that exercise and better enabled to defend in case of an attack on said fort. The prayer was granted, and the Captain of Fort George was to enlist fifty men for purposes of petition.
